Tibetan people are an East Asian ethnic group native to Tibet, the mountainous region located in southwestern China. The Communist Chinese invaded Tibet in the 1950s causing Tibetans much suffering and suppression from communist domination and ideology. The Dalai Lama (religious leader and Emperor), along with governmental leaders and thousands of Tibetans, fled to India, where around 100,000 remain exiled to this day. It is currently estimated that there are less than 500 Tibetan Christians, totalling less than 0.01 percent of the population.

Since 2015, All Nations field workers, the S' family, have lived in Asia and worked among the Tibetans. With other workers, they have launched an after-school project for Tibetan children that has been greatly appreciated by the community. Together they have established a House of Prayer that focuses on the Tibetan Buddhist world. In partnership with a Tibetan Christian couple, they produced a video series of 345 Bible stories in Tibetan that has received thousands of views on YouTube. They mobilize pioneer prayer teams to related Tibetan Buddhist people groups in remote areas. A survey of these peoples is being undertaken to empower new workers entering those areas.
